Thread: If you could become an expert at any skill overnight, what would you choose?

DryNode - October 13, 2026, 8:05 pm

For me, it would have to be programming. Not just mastering Python or C++, but understanding the whole damn family tree of programming languages and being able to use whatever the hell I need.

Now I'm going to overthink this... there's a bunch of skills I would love to master.

Deany - October 13, 2026, 8:07 pm

Probably be good at painting like airbrushing

Laughing Man - October 13, 2026, 8:11 pm

I'd want my skills back I had when I played professional video games, I've obviously aged and lost skill overtime.

that's pretty cool though, what games would you play pro in if you don't mind me asking? I know for me the closest I got to competing professionally would probably be either running S&D back on like bo2, or when I dabbled in a good bit of FACEIT on counterstrike.. but got pretty dried out fast.

(kinda thinking of trying the Valorant scene idk)

I remember being on some type of social media and seeing people make dope airbrush shirt designs and stuff, or just using it for calligraphy (which is so damn satisfying to watch) now thanks to you, I'm going to go and watch a few :D

Programming, but my brain is not wired for this, I've tried many time, with Python and C/C++, even with scripting languages such as Powershell and Bash. I'm more comfortable with HTML/CSS, but that's not the same thing ^^

Quantum physics. I think it's the future

Laughing Man - October 14, 2026, 1:43 am

Teleportation would be amazing

That's pretty badass and I agree, Quantum physics is cool as heck, I know there's Youtube channels who upload WHOLE Quantum lectures from some type of college class I would assume.. many many times I would wake up and it sound like alien talk ?

Jinu - October 14, 2026, 11:29 am

Programming is fascinating, but quantum physics intrigues me too. The concept alone is mind-blowing.

Chess. Playing lot recently and honestly mastering it would be a nice achievement. Would love to win the championship!

honestly man idk how people master any language at all ? it makes me hella jealous. HTML/CSS is still SOOOO good though it gives you a good foundation into getting in bug bounties and stuff.. especially if you know a little about javascript and HTTP protocols.

what's the first place you would wanna teleport to??

mrwhowhatnow - October 14, 2026, 11:36 am

Lot's of time you're like "wtf are they talking about".

I have actually started looking into quantum programming languages. And I saw this when it was released:

OQTOPUS (Open Quantum Toolchain for Operators & Users). It's the open-source software stack needed to build and operate cloud-accessible quantum computer systems.

Honestly i would have said programming/coding a few years ago.... but now anyone can be an expert coder or pretty much anything with AI. I mean still not 100% perfect but its getting there

Hern - October 15, 2026, 7:53 am

This is difficult to answer because most things I can just ask A.I. and get the answer and no longer have to be an expert.

I would say, in 2026 and the future being an expert at "critical thinking" still would help as it can then question A.I. output easier and move forward with progress without as many hurdles or things missed.

Learning Multiple Languages, and ofcourse logistics

oooo I wasn't even thinking about that.. whats the top 5 languages you'd want learn? for me I feel like I would want to learn, Russian, Spanish, and possibly some Sinitic languages.

Would for sure make troubleshooting go so much smoother ?

It would be the same pretty much hitting many birds with one language :) Russian, Spanish, Arabic, some sinitich language and German/French.

These coverup pretty much all the world

Yeah I would love to have multiple spoken languages too.

sharn - October 17, 2026, 12:46 pm

I would choose to speak any language fluently.

I could travel anywhere and connect with people from different cultures.
