Thread: Have you ever met someone who completely changed the way you see life?

It's funny how one person can come into your life and change the way you think about things.

For me, it would have to be my wife. Before I met her, I was mostly focused on myself, enjoying life, going out with friends and drinking without really thinking much about the future.

But when she came into my life, things slowly started to change. I started cutting back on drinking and going out with friends because I wanted to spend more time with her and focus on building a better future together. It wasn't something she forced me to do. I just started realizing that there were more important things in life.

Now that we have kids, I can honestly say my priorities are completely different from what they used to be.

Having a wife who supports you and helps you become a better person is truly a blessing.

Sometimes having the right person by your side can make all the difference in life!

Bro, life is all about learning and improving yourself. As long as you're becoming a better version of yourself along the way, that's what really matters!

Lmao! I wasn't expecting that answer! ?

I guess there's a good reason they're called exes now. ?

I don't have kids yet, but I'd imagine I would also go thru something like that You'll definitely understand that feeling once you have kids of your own. It's a whole different experience! ??
