Thread: Take your breakfast with me this morning

Gooooood morning fellas ! I hope you had a good night

This morning, I wanted to have a typical (and slightly cliché) French breakfast. So I went to the bakery and got a croissant, a pain au chocolat, a baguette, and another type of bread that's a bit more unusual. I put some butter and strawberry and blueberry jam on two slices of baguette.

Unfortunately, they didn't have any macarons, so I bought these from a supermarket instead, but they're honestly not very good. (We almost never eat macarons for breakfast in France, I just got them to make the whole thing even more stereotypically French haha.)

As for drinks, I went with some orange juice and a café au lait (coffee with milk).

Cigarettes are optional, of course, but they definitely make the whole thing feel a lot more French.

This is the bread I've mentioned earlier :

What did you get for breakfast ? What's the cliché breakfast you have in your country ?

That bread looks really nice at the end.

As an American I eat organic cereal with milk and a coffee.

Yeah it's good old bread, that's something I would really miss if I had to move from France, bread and of course cheese and wine haha
