

Forum:Hack Forums

Thread: Whatever Happened to Common Sense?

Yin Yang - October 19, 2026, 5:32 am

Why does it feel like common sense is becoming less common every year? Some people really make you wonder how they function day to day.

Raijin - October 19, 2026, 5:34 am

Maybe you are above average and the other people are just surviving ?

Yin Yang - October 19, 2026, 5:35 am

(Oct 19, 2026 05:34 AM)Raijin Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Maybe you are above average and the other people are just surviving ?Haha, so I'd like to think

Sift - October 19, 2026, 6:08 am

I think the younger generation has lost all common sense.

Bastille - October 19, 2026, 6:16 am

I think social media / smartphones has a lot to do with it. People get their algorithm fined based on their preferences and could start thinking this is normal, as they see a lot of content related and a lot of people commenting and liking publications.

Also that developed countries have been safe and comfortable for a long time, so awareness regressed a lot.

Mix - October 19, 2026, 6:17 am

The new generations does really seem to have any, I think its all the brain rot

Th3HulK - October 19, 2026, 6:19 am

I feel now tech does all the thinking, and everyone lives in their own bubble. cause when you never have to figure things out, those instincts atrophy. People aren't dumber, the world just stopped requiring them to be smart about everyday things.

Lefty - October 19, 2026, 8:08 am for some reason the old tony hawks song popped into my head.

"What happened to integrity
I don't see it on MTV
All I see is choreography
And I'll never be a dancer"

Haha.

Yin Yang - October 19, 2026, 8:16 am

(Oct 19, 2026 06:19 AM)Th3HulK Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I feel now tech does all the thinking, and everyone lives in their own bubble. cause when you never have to figure things out, those instincts atrophy. People aren't dumber, the world just stopped requiring them to be smart about everyday things.Def seems like the case

Deany - October 19, 2026, 11:09 am

Common sense gone, we are all on autopilot now.

Yin Yang - October 19, 2026, 11:09 am

(Oct 19, 2026 11:09 AM)Deany Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Common sense gone, we are all on autopilot now.ppl got their blinders on frfr

sharn - October 19, 2026, 4:34 pm

Some people act without considering the consequences.
Then they seem surprised when things go wrong.

Pimping - October 19, 2026, 4:44 pm

(Oct 19, 2026 06:08 AM)Sift Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) I think the younger generation has lost all common sense. Its so hard to interact with anyone born after 2000... most of them lack common sense, spatial awareness and everything else... not sure what it is. I mean not to say its only them since theres plenty of older people like that too but its more common with the 2000s age group

I would say maybe growing up in a digital world did that and then COVID on top.. really no idea

Sift - October 19, 2026, 4:48 pm

(44 hours ago)Pimping Wrote: [\[CITE\]](#) Its so hard to interact with anyone born after 2000... most of them lack common sense, spatial awareness and everything else... not sure what it is. I mean not to say its only them since theres plenty of older people like that too but its more common with the 2000s age group

I would say maybe growing up in a digital world did that and then COVID on top.. really no idea
It's the ones born after 2003 that seems completely lost.