You wake up tomorrow and suddenly have mastered one skill at an expert level, with absolutely no practice needed.

I would love to speak every language fluently.
Traveling and connecting with people would become so much easier.

What would you choose?

I have a couple I can't really decide between...

1. Swordplay.
2. Racing cars. (Like at the level of an F1 driver or better).
3. Mathematics, specifically Statistical Analysis.

Hacking and breaking into systems... that would be really exciting.

Marketing and sales, if you know how to sell things and persuade people, you basically unlock the cheat code to life. You can make infinite money, promote any project you care about, and never have to worry about job security.

I'd choose to play any musical instrument at an expert level. Imagine being able to sit at a piano or pick up a guitar and just play whatever you want without years of practice. That would be an incredible skill to have.
