There isn't really much need for a Keygen For Malwarebytes Anti-Malware, there are plenty valid serials if you do a quick search of the forums.

Also, It doesn't make you paranoid for wanting to know whether a program is malicious or safe.

Thanks for the share tho.

Cheers.

Why can't you just post the keys. Putting all your keys in a program will just make you seem suspicious. ?

I_xgod pkerx_i - September 2, 2010, 7:43 pm

I Assure you it isnt infected,Just helping people out

You didn't blur the generated key in the picture. I guess people can use that if they don't want to download. ?

Dexdrex - September 2, 2010, 7:56 pm

well probably he just one to create a GUI

I_xgod pkerx_i - September 2, 2010, 7:57 pm

Actually i didnt blurr it so no one would be "suspicious about the program"

When the need arises, I'll put it to the test via hitting the Generate button to see the validity of keys available.

jdBoNeZ^ - September 4, 2010, 3:12 pm

Code Yea when i first released this keygen i had several ask me what was up with the warning dont steal our product message. Kinda obvious message keys from my first release still working for me.
