ã?“©ã,^ã?“†ã?“³ - åœŸæ>œæ—¥ - Doyoubi - Sunday

ã?“?ã,†ã?“† - ä»Šæ—¥ - Kyou - Today.

ã?“ã?“—ã?“Ÿ - æ~Žæ—¥ - Ashita - Tomorrow.

æ~æ—¥ - ä€æã?“?ã?“®ã?“† - Kinou - Yesterday.

ã?“Šã?“?ã?“ã?“„ - ä,ææ~æ—¥ - Ototoi - The day before yesterday.

ã?“ã?“• - ä»Šæœ? - Kesa - This morning.

ã?“ã,“ã?“°i½Ž - ä»Šæ™© - Konban - This evening (Remember konbanwa).

ã?“„ã?“¾ - ä»Š - Ima - Now.

My next lesson will be about grammar, and feel free to ask anything or request anything.

If you want, I can try to write your names in japanese. Just post a request.

Really? That's cool.

I also want to study japanese, but I'm not able to do that in my current grade. I think that I'll have to wait until next year or someting like that, if my new school has lessons for japanese.

Thanks for the positive feedback, mate.

Edit: Oh, and congratulations on your successful exam, mate. (I assume that it was successful, I don't think that you mentioned that though. :P).

lol. thanks. actually i couldnt study in high school because its not one the school had while i was there. i am a freshman in college and they have it here at the university. the only thing i took in high school was 4 years of spanish and 1 year of mandarin chinese. they may have added japanese after i left the school though. thanks, it was good. (im sure on monday i will have to tell me teacher in japanese...."yokatta desu yo") :P my examiner is legendary for being scary and making people cry(like the girl before me) but i ended up with a B.

How is he scary? xD But, yeah. It's pretty sad that you can't chose japanese in some schools, every school should have the japanese language as an option.

By the way, where do you live?

she is notorious for talking down on you during the exam. if you arent really good then she scowls at you and mumbles about you under her breath. the looks she gives are kinda evil/intimidating but she is really nice when the exam is over. if you mess up on a section she will clearly let you know that you failed. yeah, im glad that i could choose Japanese here. been wanting to learn it for years. i live in Pennsylvania
