Thread: More Public Info On 'Eurospeak' Please

Montage - October 13, 2010, 2:28 pm

I thought this would be the most appropriate section to post this question, so sorry if I'm incorrect. I know they have a site, but some info posted on HF itself would be a nice addition, hence this thread full of questions. If Eurospeak could come over and explain, that would be great.

So...

Firstly, I'm assuming that the target audience is young UK people into 'ethical' hacking. Do people who apply have to comply to entry requirements, i.e., programming practice?

Secondly, some specifics on the course would be nice. My local uni booklet goes into detail, talking about the OSeS they use and so forth. Again, some information on HF wouldn't go a miss.

Thirdly, prices. Prices. Prices. Usually people who omit prices in initial descriptions have bad prices. I know different courses will vary, but a vague idea would be good.

Fourthly, more general information on what the certificate is, what you get (I'm talking about official stuff) would be good.

Yes, I could've PMed Eurospeak or browsed the site. But I think some info on HF itself would be good. If, by the time I post this, it's a dup thread, I'll delete it.

I was wondering what are the career paths?

The Rated R Superstar - October 13, 2010, 2:31 pm

I got this and I'm from AUS. There is a difference.

I guess contacting them in person is better idea if you have any questions but I do find the price very reasonable compared to other courses and this one offers variety of things. Like mentioned in PM, they have a representative on forums that you can contact.

Industry - October 13, 2010, 2:37 pm

Lol I live in Canada so this really has no relevance to my education nor career path.

eXero - October 13, 2010, 2:38 pm

I am from the US, and there is no possible way for me to do this five days in a row, nor pay for it. I have school. I was wondering if this was a work at your own pace thing?

Slankey™ - October 13, 2010, 2:39 pm

I got this and I live in the US.

So fail?

"Be aware I'm sending this PM to all members so while I'd love to hear feedback."

It's sent to every member on HF no matter what country they are from, Omni is promoting them for the support they are giving to HF which I think is really fair since tons of member from UK will be interested. If I was in US, I would defiantly give it a try, it's very cheap compared to others and offer variety of things and best of all is supporting HF.

Tate - October 13, 2010, 2:45 pm

Why not just give them a call, ask all of the questions you have, then post the information for us to see?

Slug - October 13, 2010, 3:02 pm

I am not educated on this subject but Omni got payed to do this?

Good information and link but I am at school and would not have time for this as many other members would I believe.

I don't even know if what i'm saying is making sense so...

I don't even know if what i'm saying is making sense so...Read the private message sent to you clearly.

Representatives of Eurospeak donated to Hackforums, they told Omni who they are and Omni decided to private message everyone about it since it's the main reason why most members are registered here, which is of course exploring ways to get around something using another way also known as "hack"... It's not like he sold a service, he did it for members of HF and looking at most replies seems like people from UK are really into it.

What you said makes sense by the way. Also, if you went and looked around, the classes are on Saturday but if you are in a different country than might just find another course.

"I've been contacted by Eurospeak, regarding an Ethical Hacking Bootcamp in Reading, asking that I contact members informing them of their newest certification program."

Where does it say they "donated"?

I want to learn.

I thought it was on weekdays but some people still have school work that takes their time on weekends also and some may even have some form of school on a Saturday but you are right though.

Why can't you guys look at it in a positive way, it's just a PM not going to hurt you?. Let's just say that paid to Omni.. what happens when you donate to Omni? Money still goes to him, plus with this money users will go take the course if they are really into it and can afford it.

I am from the uk I would take up this but to tell you the true £1000 pound would be fine.
But more then that I would not be happy to pay but I would like to know more,

I didn't appreciate the pm. It's not a big deal but I don't like getting advertising offers over the internet, especially in a pm.

A thread would have been better

To anyone still confused about this:

We have been receiving this PM:

Omniscient Wrote:Dear username,

I've been contacted by Eurospeak, regarding an Ethical Hacking Bootcamp in Reading, asking that I contact members informing them of their newest certification program. This should interest all UK member that want to take their skills to the next level. This is a unique opportunity to get real world high level training at a top facility. Eurospeak can qualify you in just a matter of weeks. Their newest course for certification is "Information Security and Ethical Hacking". They provide state of the art training facility near London. Your real training in computer security can begin today.

I feel this fits right in line with why members have joined Hack Forums and it pleases me they're supporting HF. If you can take 5 minutes and check out their website I would greatly appreciate it. Be aware I'm sending this PM to all members so while I'd love to hear feedback. I'd prefer you not reply as I may get a few thousands PM's in a short time. Instead I would prefer you contact the Eurospeak representative who is a member of this website.

Thank you.

Omniscient

P.S. Apologies to about 500 members that received the first batch of PMs. There was a typo in the url which is now corrected. Sorry about that.

Omniscient - October 13, 2010, 8:23 pm

Best option is if you have question about Eurospeak then ask them. They have a representative as a member.

<https://hackforums.net/member.php?action=profile&uid=490371>

The PM was a sponsored (that means paid) message.

The PM is still being sent to members at a rate of 1000 every 15 minutes. That means it will be another 24 hours or more before everyone gets it. All ub3r/l33t were sent PM first. I don't currently have a way to distinguish who is in what geo location so everyone gets the PM.

I don't have much else to say about this.

Elite Hacker 69 - October 13, 2010, 8:37 pm

I didn't get this. IS it still going to ub3r/l33ts?

That's like saying when a Football players gets a $50,000 bonus for a touchdown he only worked for 6 seconds. It takes years of effort and hard work to get to that level. No such thing as easy quick money.

Cam G - October 13, 2010, 9:44 pm

Too bad there wasn't a way to just narrow down sending the PM's to timezones matching to zones in like Europe, although who knows, maybe even some North Americans or elsewhere would be interested in that, although that would be really costly. Would be something I'm interested in, but sadly I live in Canada and am really occupied right now.

Might seem quick as in he got paid $1000 or whatever amount of money for 2 minutes of work, but think about it. It took him 3 years or so to get the target market this company was looking for. So no, it's not quick bank.

Omniscient - October 13, 2010, 10:26 pm

Please don't speculate on the cost. It wasn't that high since he's only trying to reach a small geo targeted audience.

I don't really care about knowing the cost, I only posted an estimate for my reply.
