Thread: ESET NOD32, Avast!, AVG, Kaspersky Which do you choose?

MikeMz - November 10, 2010, 1:29 pm

Vote please! Wanting to see which is best.

Grumpy - November 10, 2010, 1:30 pm

I voted AVG, it's the best for me. ?

Opulence - November 10, 2010, 1:31 pm

It's Kaspersky without a doubt, AVG shouldn't even be considered :/

Substance - November 10, 2010, 1:33 pm

U should have include a few more av's since there are other av's people like ;)

EDIT:I take this back i didnt saw the poll right sorry ;)

Apocalypse - November 10, 2010, 1:37 pm

I choose AntiVir Avira because it is simply awesome.

colinf - November 10, 2010, 1:40 pm

Don't have an AV anymore but I was always using Avira.

Kaleidoscope - November 10, 2010, 1:48 pm

Nod32 is the antivirus of choice for me.

No not really IMO. While browsing internet with Kaspersky, it's really slow. On the other hand NOD32 is really light and it's a really good antivirus. So it's a Win Win if you ask me.

Science - November 10, 2010, 1:57 pm

I use Avast! I really like it, beside Nod32 was just a big fail.

noax - November 11, 2010, 6:45 am

Damn not enough post to vote :(by the way i vote NOD32 it's the one i always use lol i also use Avast but less often...

Rainmaker - November 11, 2010, 8:51 am

Avira + Norton SONAR + Comodo + Malwarebytes = Win

JackNuts - November 16, 2010, 1:18 pm

i have kaspersky, avast, spybot s & D, nod32, and malware malbytes, i run kaspersky most of the time.

Pyridine - November 16, 2010, 2:38 pm

Comodo. Bullet proof if you configure it correctly.

Pokie - November 16, 2010, 3:23 pm

I would choose Avast since the people i ratted with avast disappeared the fastest ^^

I prefer AVG, because it is yet to become a system leech. Most Av's out there start burrowing into your system making them harder and harder to uninstall them. AVG, lets me know if there is something unauthorized going on my system. Updates every day.

Kaspersky is one of those system leeches.

PS: AVG is starting to go the same direction as all the other av's out there.? And as a 2nd choice, it would be Avast.

Nod32 is without a doubt the lightest-and-the-best!

Kirk Gandril - November 16, 2010, 8:32 pm

For netbooks, I'd pick ESET because it provides basic protection with not much resource usage.

For fast computers, I recommend Kaspesky because it is more advanced and resource usage won't be noticeable.

»AUB™ - November 16, 2010, 10:41 pm

i voted Avast!

Fallenbot - November 17, 2010, 4:35 am

Nod32 for me. I didn't had any problems since i installed it :)

Exiled™ - November 17, 2010, 12:08 pm

EsetSmartSecurity ,for me is bether then Nod32

~Tom~ - November 17, 2010, 12:12 pm

ESET Smart Security. I've always used and loved NOD32 and fairly recently made the change to Smart Security to have the added benefit of the Firewall.

:O not enough post to vote :(i vote AVG, its the best antivirus out there :D, its really light and fast Scann !!

N33 - September 24, 2011, 12:32 pm

I had Avira but it didn't detect the SCV Host virus so i didn't use it anymore ...

AVG is bad,Nod 32 is very good and the others ... well i didn't try.

rcsade - September 26, 2011, 12:05 am

For me Nod32, fast,good and eat small ram :)

DefaceYoFace - September 26, 2011, 12:06 am

I dont use anti,i got norton payed version but i always keep it off due to the fact it will delete my darkcomet and shot.

king_hendra - September 26, 2011, 2:53 am

i voted for eset nod32 the best antivirus for me
