Thread: Best/Worst Anime Ever?

Orgasmic - November 11, 2010, 5:04 pm

Okay, so in this thread, I want you guys to post the best anime you've ever seen, then the worst. I am quite curious to see what you guys think about certain types of anime/manga.

Status - November 11, 2010, 5:07 pm

Best: Clannad

Worst: I like all the animes I have watched so far.

Bug Senpai - November 11, 2010, 5:31 pm

Best: Between Cromartie High and Elfen Lied.

Worst: Naruto, Naruto Shippuden and Bleach.

Worst: School days

WinRawr jr - November 11, 2010, 6:59 pm

the anime that i think is the best is without a doubt love hina

and the worst anime i have ever seen would have to be death note the reason my favorite is love hina is because of the story line i watched the first episode and i was instantly hooked the love triangle was very amusing to me, i loved the fact that Keitaro is trying to keep a promise to a girl he met when he was 5(or something like that)about going to Tokyo U together. i was interested to know how that turns out.

the reason i think death note is the worst i have watched is because the fact that Spoiler \(Click to View\)L dies and then light dies which i rather didn't care if light dies but he was suppose to die by L imo N is nothing compared to L

Best: Tie between Black Lagoon & Bakemonogatari.

Worst: oh god, where do I start?

From my point of view, the worst I ever sat down and watched would have to be.... Samurai Girl: Real Bout High School, or Akikan!.

I'm sure there have been others that sucked harder than both of those combined, but, I don't remember them, sorry. =(

One of the best (i have a few): Baccano!

Worst: vampire knight.

Shingeki - November 12, 2010, 9:18 am

Best anime ever: Fullmetal Alchemist: Brotherhood.

Worst anime ever: I only watched good anime.

Yuusha - November 12, 2010, 9:47 am

I can't decide on the best but the worst is probably Nightwalker: The Midnight Detective, only reason I didn't drop it was because I had a "don't drop anime" policy.

?aragon - November 12, 2010, 10:17 am

Watch death note first, then code geass.

Why should you watch death note first?

Because; when you see it you will think code geass owned it so fucking hard!

The Bleach manga was pretty good for a while, but then it just started to get stupid. Personally I think they should of stopped after Ichigo saved Rukia, from the Soul Society. I ended up dropping it in the begging of the summer.

Best: Either Moribito Guardian of the Spirit (I'm a sucker for spears) or Elfen Lied. That first episode was baus.

Worst: I haven't seen to many really bad ones TBH, but if I had to choose, either Naruto. Too too many fillers + dragging plot = nothanks.

xtrueotaku - November 27, 2010, 1:11 am

Best: Detective conan, oh yes<3 worst: Well I hardly ever see an anime that's all bad, like death note id say episode 25+ is the worst, or any filler in most mainstream anime (you know which ones im talking about), but if you read the manga or watch the original japanese, and skip over the filler most anime you all cant stand like bleach or naruto or one piece they are actually enjoyable assuming you like fighters like that. DBZ has a lot of filler and I liked it as a kid but I could never watch it as i got older, but dragonball z kai is more tolerable and whenever i see its on tv ill watch it. but dragon ball is way better >:D!!

as far as the code geas vs death note thing, i've only seen two episode of code geas and thought it was awesome but i was addicted to deathnote and finished it in a day XD i think the first 25 episodes (until L dies) where awesome

I thought of Code Geass as what would happen if you mixed Gurren Lagann and Death Note, then amplified the awesomeness by 400.

Best: Code Geass

The whole Death Note vs. Code Geass thing.

Spoiler \(Click to View\)

When L dies the series gets extremely boring.
If L were alive, he would have never used the tactics Near used.
Code Geass was really fun all the way through.
It also had a nice ending.
Although I guess a con to it could be it was a bit predictable in some areas.

@Geass vs. Death Note, Code Geass was much more exciting IMO. I liked both, but Geass actually put in some action so that your mind wouldn't turn into mush thinking about everything too much.

I never said it didn't, but annoying voice actors can make a anime bad. If the plots good, but the voice actors make you want to stab a pencil through your ears, you might not want to watch the anime.

Meh, hating Naruto has become to "in" thing to do, just the same as watching sub over dub. Don't blindly hate naruto because everyone's doing it, the plot line itself isn't too bad, the anime is just way too long, filled with useless filler eps, and non plot related material. Read the manga imo, it's worth it.

Also, the decline in popularity of Naruto is probably because the kiddie fans have grown up a bit.

But when someone has watched it, then they can join in on the bandwagon that is saying that Naruto sucks. I hated it to be honest, everything just drug out soo much and it was stupidly annoying.
