Thread: Portforwarding with UTorrent/BitTorrent | Easy | Fast | 3 Steps!

The MammoTh - December 31, 2010, 2:38 am

Hello,

Today i wanted to make a tutorial on portforwarding with UTorrent a very easy and fast way of doing.

Always wanted to portforward but you just can't or your router won't let you, then this might be your alternative.

Requirements,

UTorrent Or BitTorrent (Downloaded at <http://www.utorrent.com/>)

(I suggest using UTorrent)

Not be scared to but your firewall off.

More Information,

This method of portforwarding will set your ip open you can not make a no-ip, example mydomain.no-ip.biz.

So you use your ip to let people connect.

This works for Ddosers, Shell Booters, RAT's.

(Sorry i'm dutch so my computer language is dutch to, i try to explain as good as possible)

Step 1)

Open Utorrent/BitTorrent,

Press CTRL + P.

And click on connections.

And change the port to whatever you want.

Click ok.

Step 2)

Go to Control Panel > Security > Windows Firewall > and turn it off.

Step 3)

Got to <http://www.whatismyip.com/> to see your ip.

Your done, please leave a comment or if you have any questions.

FAQ,

Don't listen to jackass people that tell/say i leached this guide, no fully written by me screenshots by me.

You just copied my fucking tutorial.

The MammoTh - December 31, 2010, 3:02 am

Dude wtf i all wrote this meself wtf are you talking about every freaking word is written by me.
Screenshots everything is from me..

EDIT: I have seen your tutorial now and it doesn't even look like mine.

No Problem, glad to help you.

Eternity - December 31, 2010, 3:36 am

Yeah what ever mate, next time don't copy :|. And wtf is with <http://www.whatismyip.com/> ? Why would you go there? Lol

The MammoTh - December 31, 2010, 3:39 am

The portforwarding is linked to your ip this is just to help some people and don't ever say copy again.

N, it doesn't matter at all :P

dothatazn - January 13, 2011, 12:02 pm

Quote:Step 2)

Go to Control Panel > Security > Windows Firewall > and turn it off.
Or you could just tick "Add Windows Firewall exception".
