Thread: Sega's new console uses urine as controller

xSkilledx - January 13, 2011, 6:15 am

Quote:Sega has launched a new video game console across Japan to introduce a new kind of gaming.

Known as the Sega Toylet, it works by measuring the pressure and location of the male player's urine flow through sensors in the bottom of the bowl.

A pressure sensor in the urinal measure the strength and the location of the urine stream as it hits the basin.

An LCD screen displays the graphics and rewards the strength, length and accuracy of the pee through a points system.

The games are pretty straightforward:

"Manneken Pis" calculates exactly how much a player peed.

In "Graffiti Eraser," players try to urinate forcefully to blast graffiti off a wall.

In "The North Wind and Her," gamers act as the wind, attempting to lift a woman's skirt with powerful blasts.

In "Milk From Nose," players go head to head with the previous urinal user to see who has the strongest flow.

The gamers appear as sumo wrestlers who squirt milk from their noses to push their peers out of the ring.

Proud players are able to download their high scores onto a flash drive.

By selling advertisements between games, Sega hopes to be flush with cash.

i want one. its an excuse to pee in the living room, and loks like a unique play.

Sights101 - January 13, 2011, 2:09 pm

Oh. My. God. This is fucking epic.

Node - January 13, 2011, 2:40 pm

haha this is crazy...lol..

ichosemypath - January 17, 2011, 2:31 am i wouldn't want to be the tech responsible for repairs...

All the asians just love to find every way to entertain themselves (I'm not racist to Asians I love them!!)

What if it backfires and acts like pissing on an electric fence? Ouch...

Scary Dreams - January 17, 2011, 2:53 pm

Ohhh meh god.

I want that now!!

Nick5020 - January 17, 2011, 11:42 pm

These gonna start popin up in all urinals lol?

Funny haha

People gonna be missing and pissing all over the walls haha.

MIHAKINEN - January 18, 2011, 7:49 am

Yup--- Only in Japan I must say.

Zeon - January 18, 2011, 9:36 am

Haha, this made my day. But couldn't you cheat by pouring water on the bowl?

asha101 - January 18, 2011, 11:24 am

When i go traveling im definitely going to try find this :D

Looks Awesome!
